There was a Rich Lady of Rome
Who lived in a marvellous home
She spent all her time
Drinking tea and red wine
That crazy Rich Lady of Rome
(Valentina C.)

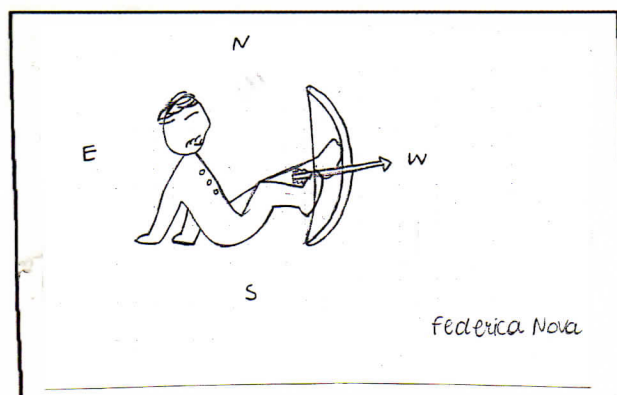

There was an Old Person from Scotland
Who was all alone on an island
He had nothing to eat
So he ate both his feet
That hungry Old Person from Scotland
(Federica T.)

There was A Young Lady from Nizza
Who always ate pasta and pizza
She also loved flowers
And lived in a tower
That princessy Lady from Nizza.

There was an Old Man with a bow
Who was able to shoot with one toe
From the right to the left
From the east to the West
That powerful Man with a bow
(Federica N.)

There was a Big Boy from Nepal
Whose hobby was climbing the wall
He fell on a tree
And he broke his left knee
That unlucky Big Boy from Nepal
(Ginevra C.)

There was an Old Person of Paris
Who read Irish legends with fairies
He dressed as a queen
Duradee diradee
That childish Old Person of Paris
(Elena)

There was a Fine Girl of Latina
Who was known by the name of Sabrina
When she said 'lucky glue'
She made the sky blue
That colourful girl of Latina
(Giulia C.)

There was a Young Lady of Pisa
Who constantly looked for her Visa
When she finally found it
She danced all around it
That careless Young Lady of Pisa
(Giulia V.)

There was a Small Baby so nice
That he loved kissing pigeons and mice
One day he got hungry
And ate some in the pantry
That greedy Small Baby so nice
(Valentina P.)

There was a Young Lady of Nizza
Who used to eat fries and hot pizza
One day she felt sick
And threw up for a week
That imprudent Young Lady of Nizza
(Martina R.)

There was a Young Man in Brianza
Who wrote a great poem in stanzas
Although he was blind
He worked with his mind
That lyrical Man in Brianza
(Paolo C.)
